Tamzin Brown

AREAS OF PRACTICE

Children (Public and Private Law), Domestic Violence and the Human Rights Act 1998

Tamzin Brown's practice covers all areas of family law.

Tamzin has a keen interest in human rights and international law. Prior to being called to the Bar she worked at the AIRE (Advice on Individual Rights in Europe) Centre, advising on the European Convention on Human Rights in general and specifically on how it affects family law. Tamzin is currently a committee member of the Human Rights Lawyers Association.

Tamzin also has an interest in immigration issues and their impact on family law proceedings (both public and private). She has undertaken voluntary work with the United Nations High Commission for Refugees in Geneva and the Immigration Advisory Service in London.

Tamzin is also the managing editor of the European Human Rights Law Review.
